LED BY ARCHITECTS OF ISO 45001

We bring to your team the highest levels of industry knowledge and experience through our leadership experts. Among our ranks you'll find professionals who have led OSHA, participated in the US Technical Advisory Group that developed the global ISO 45001 standard, taught Process Safety Management at the collegiate level, and designed safety-specific corporate initiatives and world-class safety management systems.

DESIGNING A CUSTOMIZED PATHWAY

Many large safety consulting companies tend to offer a “one-size-fits-all” approach. Fisher Phillips Safety Solutions addresses the intricacies of your organization before recommending the path to ISO 45001 certification. Our parent company, Fisher Phillips, is a leading labor and employment law firm — and as such, we understand the differences in workplaces throughout the country. We assess each client’s safety and health needs through FP Safety Solutions audit. In assisting companies on their quest for ISO 45001 certification, we will perform a comprehensive audit of your safety program, identify the gaps, and work with you to eliminate those gaps — elevating your company to an outstanding level of safety. Utilizing our comprehensive Safety and Health services will help you meet sustainability goals, improve the productivity of your employees, increase the profitability of your company, and improve the image and value of your company in the minds of prospective investors and customers.
